DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1, 3-4, 8, 10-20 and 22-27 are pending in this application and have been examined in response to application RCE filed on 12/17/2008.

Claim Objections

3. Claim 1 recites the limitation "...parameters for each of the plurality;" on line 8. The recited limitation appears to be missing additional words.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

4. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 27 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

5. Claim 27 recites the limitation "the library of components". The limitation is not disclosed in the parent claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

6. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

Art Unit: 2173

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

7. Claims 1, 3-4, 8, 10-20 and 22-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being unpatentable by Underwood et al. (Underwood, US 7,152,207 B1).

8. As to INDEPENDENT claim 1, Underwood discloses a method comprising:
presenting a list of different selectable components used to generate Web pages and associated configurable parameters for each of the components (col.13, lines 1-5; fig.5-10; a list of components is displayed for defining a web site).

receiving a selection of a plurality of the different selectable components and values for associated configurable parameters for each of the plurality parameters for the web environment (col.13, lines 15-19; the users are allowed to configure a web site via components presented via a "Web Definer");

automatically generating a Web page based at least in part, on the received selection of the plurality of the different selectable components and the received parameter values, wherein the Web page presents the plurality of the different selectable components in accordance with the received parameter values (fig.11, "660"; the defined site is created via the "Create" button);

receiving a request to publish content in the Web page (fig.13, "1305"; a user publishes new content via "Add Pages");

publishing the identified content in accordance with a predefined presentation format (col.15, lines 54-57); and receiving data corresponding to a request to navigate to a particular location within the Web page, wherein the request to publish content is received in connection with a display of the particular location on a user interface and the identified content is published at the particular location (fig.15; col.15, lines 30-35; a user selects a particular location in the hierarchy of the site map to publish additional web pages)

9. As to claim 3, Underwood discloses the form comprises a plurality of entry fields, with each entry field corresponding to one of the different selectable components (fig.9, “635”; a list of selectable components is presented via a drop down menu).

10. As to claim 4, Underwood discloses the generated Web page is based on a template defining a presentation format for the generated Web page (col.12, lines 30-35; “template”).

11. As to claim 8, Underwood discloses the particular location comprises a folder within a displayed folder hierarchy, with the folder hierarchy corresponding to a logical structure of the Web page (fig.14, “1405”).

12. As to claim 10, Underwood discloses the different selectable components comprise web page components, with each web page component defining a presentation format for data on a web page (col.15, lines 60-65).

13. As to claim 11, see rationale addressed in the rejection of claim 6 above.

14. As to claim 12, Underwood discloses the content includes at least one link to a web page (col.7, lines 1-5; "links").

15. As to claim 13, Underwood discloses receiving a request to modify a logical structure of the Web page; modifying the logical structure of the Web page in accordance with the request to modify the logical structure (col.15, lines 30-50; options such as adding a page and deleting a page are provided); and updating the at least one link in accordance with the modified logical structure (col.15, lines 55-56).

16. As to INDEPENDENT claim 14, see rationale addressed in the rejection of claim 1 above.

17. As to claim 15, Underwood discloses the presented user interface comprises a form adapted to allow a user to configure the parameters (fig.6-11).

18. As to claim 16, see rationale addressed in the rejection of claim 3 above.
19. As to claim 17, see rationale addressed in the rejection of claim 4 above.
20. As to claim 18, see rationale addressed in the rejection of claim 1 above.
21. As to claim 19, see rationale addressed in the rejection of claim 1 above.
22. As to claim 20, see rationale addressed in the rejection of claim 8 above.
23. As to claim 22, see rationale addressed in the rejection of claim 10 above.
24. As to claim 23, see rationale addressed in the rejection of claim 18 above.
25. As to claim 24, see rationale addressed in the rejection of claim 12 above.
26. As to claim 25, see rationale addressed in the rejection of claim 13 above.
27. As to claim 26, Underwood discloses wherein the templates include templates for at least one of different countries, different organizational sites, intranet sites, extranet sites, or internet sites (fig.9, "635"; different industry types such as "General" and "Manufacturing" are disclosed).

Art Unit: 2173

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

28. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

29. Claim 27 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Underwood and Maeno et al. (Maeno, US 7,299,414 B2).

30. As to claim 27, Underwood does not disclose different language components to allow a user to selectively switch among different languages for presentation in generated Web page.

In the same field of endeavor, Maeno discloses different language components to allow a user to selectively switch among different languages for presentation in generated web environment (Abstract).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, having the teaching of Underwood and Maeno before him at the time the invention was made, to modify the web designer taught by Underwood to include multilingual pack taught by Maeno with the motivation being to allow an appropriate language format responsive to the user's need (col.2, lines 30-33).

Response to Arguments

31. Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 1 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
